

Rectangular Prisms

A geometric solid is a figure that has three dimensions—length, width, and height.

A rectangular prism is one type of geometric solid. (See other examples of geometric solids on pages 111–114.)

Here are some examples of real-world objects that are shaped like a rectangular prism.

Math Words

- rectangular prism
- three-dimensional (3-D)

